Organizers:

Makoto Tawada - Nagoya University, Japan. E-mail: mtawada2@dpc.agu.ac.jp
Kenji Nozaki - Takasaki City University, Japan. E-Mail: knozaki.kenji@gmail.com

The aim and scope:

The first purpose of this session is to exchange views on researches of Southeast Asian economic development. The second purpose is to share the research results among the participants.

When we overview the world economy, we find that Asian development is becoming more and more important. In particular, we focus on Southeast Asian nations, which are on the different stages of development. For example, Thailand is rather advanced country and becoming a hub of production network, while Myanmar is still less developed than others. Under such recognition, roles of governments including human resource, infrastructure, and trade issue are presented.