Purpose and Scope

The objective of this special session is to bring together researchers examining the environmental, social, and economic dimensions of sustainability transitions across Latin American regions. It aims to promote dialogue on how territorial inequalities, energy transitions, and regional development policies intersect in shaping sustainable futures. By integrating diverse methodological approaches—from input–output and spatial models to qualitative regional analysis—the session seeks to strengthen collaboration among scholars within the RSAI and LARSA networks and to highlight Latin America's contributions to global debates on regional sustainability.
